CAMPBELLTOWN’S
NATURE DISCOVERY TRAIL

Dharawal National Park

Keith Longhurst Reserve

The Australian Botanic Garden
Bordered by scenic hills, nature reserves and waterways, Campbelltown’s natural bushland surrounds offer a scenic escape just moments from the city centre, and are the perfect haven for nature lovers.

Follow meandering trails through the serene beauty of the Australian bush to reveal scenic lookouts, secluded waterholes and stunning landscapes, where daily life seems to fade away.

Discover spectacular flowing streams, dramatic natural rock escarpments, as well as native flora and fauna, including our very own local koala colony. With breathtaking views and stunning horizons, the untamed splendour of the area will leave you in awe.

Campbelltown also has a number of beautiful gardens and public parks that are perfect for a relaxed picnic or barbeque.
Dharawal was proclaimed a national park in 2012. Pristine ecosystems, waterfalls, extensive upland swamps, steep-sided sandstone gorges, swimming holes and rock shelters are just some of the many fascinating landscape features you can explore.

Dharawal National Park is the perfect antidote to city living. At 6,500 hectares, the park supports a huge range of birds and animals, superb plant life, and features tracks to walk or ride along with scenic spots to relax.

‘Dharawal’ refers to the language group of the local Aboriginal people who have continued their relationship with the area for more than 15,000 years. Their long occupation of the area is evidenced by many Aboriginal sites, making the area among the richest in Aboriginal heritage in the Sydney region.
The Dharawal National Park is one of Australia’s newest national parks, and is an environment rich in biodiversity and cultural heritage.

One of the best ways to discover the national park is to join a guided Aboriginal walking tour. The tours, which are held on the second Saturday of each month from February to November, give visitors a fresh look at the landscape from a Koori perspective.

The tours are led by Aboriginal Discovery Ranger, Deidre Martin, who shares stories of the local Aboriginal tribes and their culture, while also showing visitors the park’s waterfalls, steep-sided sandstone gorges, swimming holes and rock shelters.

The tours give visitors the opportunity to explore the strong relationship the Dharawal people have with the land, water, plants and animals, by showcasing plants native to the region and demonstrating how they were used for food and medicine.

“Through guiding these tours, I hope to increase understanding about our culture, customs and identity,” said Deidre.

Deidre shares personal insights as she takes participants on a cultural journey through the park, which protects several ancient Aboriginal sites, as well as many rare and threatened species of native plants.

With more than 500 species of native flora and a variety of native animals including birds, mammals, reptiles and a koala colony, the Dharawal National Park is an important ecological site that is open year round for visitors to explore and enjoy.
O’HARES CREEK TRACK AND LOOKOUT
For some of the best views over the gorge, make tracks to the O’Hares Creek Lookout. The 2.8km return walk is an easy grade and the scenic location offers views to the picturesque rockpools far below.

JINGGA WALKING TRACK
For avid walkers, the Jingga Walking Track offers a challenging 2.8km return walk at a hard grade. A scenic reward is on offer for those who undertake the walk, with the track leading to a spectacular waterhole along O’Hares Creek.
10T MANAGEMENT TRAIL
One of the most popular walks in the park is the 10T Management Trail. Despite its rather uninspiring name, this medium grade trail will take walkers to one of the most scenic locations within the park – Minerva Pool. This wide pool with a rock island in the middle is creek-fed by a small waterfall. The 2.4km return trail will take you to a viewing platform or you can follow the fork in the trail down to the water.

10B CYCLE TRAIL
If you’re looking to take your mountain bike out for a long ride, the 10B Cycle Trail offers the perfect day out. At 15km long, it starts from the Appin Road entrance of Dharawal National Park, and follows an unsealed road through open forest and woodlands along a sandstone ridge. This is a great bike ride for small groups and families with older children.
The Georges River and surrounds are a highly significant landscape feature of the Sydney region and the Campbelltown environment. It is home to much of the biodiversity that can be found in the region, including an active koala colony, and provides immense scenic value to the area.

The Georges River was an important focal point for Aboriginal life and culture in the southern Sydney region, offering food, transport and dreamtime links. Several major language groups existed along the river: Eora to the east, Dharug to the west, north and north-east, Dharawal to the south and Gandangara in the far south-west.

The early 1800s saw European settlers migrating to the areas along the Georges River. Much of the catchment was cleared for farmlands and housing, however, the banks stayed relatively untamed due to their rugged slopes.
KEY EXPERIENCES OF THE GEORGES RIVER

FRERE’S CROSSING RESERVE Frere’s Rd, Kentlyn
A significant heritage site containing the remnants of an old wooden bridge that formed part of a connection from Campbelltown to Newcastle up to 1917. The Frere’s Crossing Walking Trail is a 2km return walk along an established fire trail and is of a medium grade.

INGLEBURN RESERVE Picnic Grove, Ingleburn
A bushland reserve containing the historic Ingleburn Weir, which was constructed in the late 1930s to provide a swimming area for the local community. The reserve is home to a number of endangered plant species, as well as a range of native birds, marsupials and other small mammals and reptiles. The Ingleburn Reserve Walking Trail is a 400m return walk through bushland and down a number of stairs and is of a medium grade.

KEITH LONGHURST RESERVE Georges River Rd, Kentlyn
The Keith Longhurst Reserve is a 76 hectare bushland reserve with significant scenic and cultural values and a number of walking tracks. The Basin Walking Track takes visitors through bushland and down to the Georges River below. It is recommended for people of a moderate fitness level as there is some climbing involved along the track. The track is of a medium grade.

SIMMO’S BEACH RESERVE Fifth Av, Macquarie Fields
Simmo’s Beach is located on the Georges River and its easy access, picnic facilities and beach area make it a popular site for local residents. The reserve is named after Simmonds, a past resident who mined sand adjacent to the Georges River. The reserve is home to a number of endangered and vulnerable ecological community types, with many threatened species of native flora and fauna recorded at the site. The walking trails in the reserve vary in length from 500m to 1.5km, and their grades range from easy, paved surfaces to hard, unsealed surfaces.

The Australian Botanic Garden Mount Annan is Australia’s largest botanic garden, with more than 2,500 species of native plants on display.

The garden covers 416 hectares and features themed gardens with BBQ and picnic facilities, a cafe, walking tracks, a plant nursery and gift shop, as well as interactive sculptures such as the Sundial of Human Involvement and the Federation Flower Maze. The garden is also home to the internationally significant research facility, The Australian PlantBank, where more than 5,000 species of Australian native seeds are stored and research into further plant conservation continues.

On the Woodland Walk, visitors can explore the endangered Cumberland Plain Woodland, which is one of many interesting and varied landscapes throughout the garden. An important fauna refuge, the garden is home to more than 160 bird species, insects, native mammals such as the Wallaroo and Swamp Wallaby and the very interesting glow-in-the-dark scorpion.

With more than 20km of walking and cycling tracks, great food and loads of places to relax, the garden is the perfect place to explore.
The Australian Botanic Garden, Mount Annan is an increasingly valuable ‘green space’ in Sydney’s growing urban area. The garden is a regionally important haven for native wildlife, therefore, managing the native woodlands, grasslands and open space areas, is essential in order to maintain habitat and support healthy fauna populations.

Jordan Scott is the garden’s Supervisor of Natural Areas and Open Spaces, and is responsible for maintaining the integrity and diversity of three regionally significant plant communities.

“What helping me in the management of the garden’s natural areas is a great team of ground staff, as well as an amazing group of volunteers that participate in monthly Bushcare sessions. Together, we work towards the maintenance and protection of the garden’s natural environment,” said Jordan.

With more than 400 hectares to cover, Jordan is aware that he has his work cut out for him and his team, but the importance of the work helps keep him motivated.

“The garden includes some of the critically endangered Cumberland Plain Woodland, which is under threat from the highly invasive African Olive Tree. The garden has become a leader in eradication of the weed using new and unique methods of removal, including the trial last year of a herd of goats to see how effective a very natural form of weed control would be.

“We are also now focusing on techniques to restore the original woodland vegetation in areas that have been cleared of olive forest,” said Jordan.

Another key area of management for Jordan is the care, maintenance and development of grasslands that cover an area the size of approximately 220 football fields.

“This involves slashing programs, along with selective and strategic herbicide application to control weeds,” explains Jordan. “I also work closely with staff to nurture and develop the extensive tree collection, and oversee the maintenance and development of the high profile manicured lawns.”

It is a challenge to cover every corner of the garden and Jordan enjoys the opportunity to be creative in how he manages the natural areas and open spaces which are enjoyed by thousands of visitors each year.

CAMPBELLTOWN’S ART AND CULTURAL TRAIL
Campbelltown, settled in the early 1800s, is an historically significant region that has developed into a dynamic and energetic city.

Rich in history and character, links to the city’s colonial settlement are reflected in the large number of heritage properties scattered throughout the city, including Glenalvon House, Quondong Cottage and the Queen Street Heritage Precinct.

The city’s innovative and dynamic arts scene is showcased at the Campbelltown Arts Centre, which features an annual calendar of contemporary exhibitions and performances, as well as an interactive outdoor Sculpture Garden and tranquil Japanese Garden, complete with teahouse, koi fish and waterfalls.

Campbelltown Theatre Group operates from the historic Town Hall. The group have been performing since 1956 and are the oldest and largest theatre group in the region. The group is dedicated to being a leader in the local arts community.

A DYNAMIC ARTS AND CULTURAL SCENE
Lisa Reihana is an artist of Màori (Ngà Puhi, Ngàti Hine, Ngài Tu) and British descent. Lisa is at the forefront of experimentation and has helped forge the development of time-based and media art in Aotearoa (New Zealand). Influenced by indigenous filmmaking, her technically ambitious and poetically nuanced work disrupts gender, time, power, and representational norms.

Lisa’s work spans film, sound, photography, spatial design, live-action, costume and sculptural form and is driven by a powerful connection to community which informs her collaborative working method described as kanohi ki te kanohi (face to face).

In January 2018, Campbelltown Arts Centre will feature Lisa’s work in Pursuit of Venus [infected], 2015—17, following its premiere at the 2017 Venice Art Biennale. Almost 10 years in the making, this complex digital audio-visual project is a cinematic reimagining of the French scenic wallpaper Les Sauvages de la Mer Pacifique, 1804—1805, also known as ‘Captain Cook’s voyages’.

Two centuries later, and almost 250 years after the original voyages, Reihana has used 21st century audio-visual technology to animate the wallpaper with real and invented narratives. The work includes scenes featuring dancers and weavers from the local Dharawal Aboriginal community.

Lisa’s work re-casts the original European “fabrication” of the Pacific to suggest a more complex story. Characters are drawn from across New Zealand, the Pacific and Europe with the death of Cook in Hawai’i as a dramatic moment of “rupture” in the video.

An earlier version of Lisa’s work, was a finalist in the Singapore Art Museum’s Signature Art Prize 2014, and was the most visited solo exhibition by a New Zealand artist at the Auckland Art Gallery since 1997 when it was on exhibition in 2015.
The Campbelltown Arts Centre is a state-of-the-art facility delivering a broad range of contemporary cultural programs in both the visual and performing arts. The centre features a range of exhibitions and artist collaborations each year and is an ideal venue for exploring the culture of Campbelltown or holding a private function.

Features include a sun-filled atrium, 180 seat performance studio, rehearsal studios, workshop space, exhibition galleries, Japanese Garden and teahouse, outdoor Sculpture Garden, cafe and an outdoor amphitheatre.

The centre hosts an annual program of workshops, visual arts, music, dance, live art and emergent practices.

The Japanese Garden has a traditional waterfall, koi pond, timber bridge, stonework paths and flourishing plants. The teahouse was a Bicentennial gift from Koshigaya, Campbelltown’s sister city in Japan. The garden and teahouse symbolise the beliefs and religion of both Shinto and Zen Buddhism.

The outdoor Sculpture Garden is a Centenary of Federation project, featuring a range of changing and permanent exhibitions, and is full of works by renowned artists.
ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

 Dramma Class with Angela Cascarino
Angela Cascarino’s love of the theatre began at a very young age, when as an active eight year old, her mother decided drama lessons would be a good outlet for a creative and active child, and enrolled her in classes held in the Beacon Hill Community Theatre.

Since then, Angela has gone on to study theatre and production at university and has worked on a huge range of events and productions, from a large scale musical at Sydney’s Lyric Theatre, to smaller events at the Stables Theatre, the Seymour Centre and in Kings Cross. Angela has also worked internationally, on productions in China for the Australian Government.

Angela’s involvement in the Campbelltown performing arts community came after moving to the area more than 20 years ago, and joining the Campbelltown Theatre Group.

“We are so blessed to work in such an iconic heritage building, that is still a working theatre. It is a resource we do not take for granted at all,” said Angela. “I believe the quality of our work puts CTG into new heights and the joy of creating such a large scale event is worth the horrendous hours spent of our spare time.

“Working locally is brilliant. After working on large professional shows in the city, to have such opportunities in our own backyard is a blessing that I am truly grateful for.

“The need for quality theatre, to help build our own unique cultural identity, becomes increasingly important as the region grows. The community is screaming out for a range of productions that have our own unique flavour. The arts are flourishing and need to be encouraged to be as diverse and unique as the people in the audience.”

Campbelltown Theatre Group (CTG) has a long and proud history, being the oldest and largest theatrical company in the region. Dedicated to being a leader in the local arts community, the group has produced a variety of works from well-known musicals to modern Australian plays, Shakespeare and even independent pieces by their members.

CAMPBELLTOWN’S LIVE MUSIC AND ENTERTAINMENT
Across the Macarthur region, there is a range of venues that regularly present live gigs, performances and entertainment.

There is nothing better than listening to live music, and the Macarthur region is home to a wealth of talented performers – many of who are award winning, national touring artists, who still enjoy returning home to perform at their favourite venues to a local crowd.

The Macarthur Gig Guide is a portal to all of the latest live music events in the region. Stay up to date by checking the website or following them on Facebook:

www.macarthurentertainment.com.au

For lead vocalist, Paul Grierson, of award winning Australian country music band, Simply Bushed, becoming a musician was inevitable.

“I was a born a musician, I remember asking for my first guitar when I was only five,” explains Paul. “Growing up, our family would often go and see live music at a number of the local venues and I loved the energy of the music. We would also go to lots of bush dances, and I think that is where my love of country music all started.”

For Paul, starting his own band was the next logical step in his musical evolution. Simply Bushed was the result.

“We are an Australiana act, based on the historical bush bands of the past, but with a modern polished, version, full of relevant, original and award winning music about Australia,” said Paul. “Our style is probably best summed up by the statement that we start our shows with – we sing Australian songs about Australia”.

This motto has served well for the band, who has won a slew of awards over the years, including the award for Best Band of 2016 at last year’s Australian Independent Country Music Awards.

“My band has been going for more than 20 years, 10 of those with my current band partner, Chris Reiger,” said Paul. “We still love what we do, and that makes it easy to keep on going. People always feel proud to be an Australian when we are finished with them at the end of our shows!”

Despite performing to audiences all over the country, for Paul, there is nothing better than performing to a local crowd.

“We always have heaps of friends in the audience. And most of the time, we will be on stage performing, and recognise a face from the local shop or from someone you see down the street all the time,” said Paul. “Our local fans are always showing us how proud they are of our success; their support means so much to us.”

MACARTHUR GIG GUIDE
macarthurentertainment.com.au
A complete guide for live gigs in the Macarthur region.
Local musician, Luke Koteras, grew up with a love of music and learnt to play the guitar at a young age. Since then, he has gone on to forge a successful career in the music industry.

Luke’s soul infused sound encapsulates elements of acoustic, funk, dance, R&B with a slight jazz twist, and is a style developed from having spent years touring Australia and captivating audiences.

Despite touring internationally throughout the United Kingdom, Thailand, China and North America, and most recently supporting Guy Sebastian’s “You Me Us” Australian tour, Luke still finds the time to return home and play to his local fan base.

“The best thing about playing locally is supporting all the great local music venues,” said Luke. “I love living in the Macarthur region, and there’s so much to do here, so it would be great to put our region on the map as a LIVE music hub for residents and tourists to enjoy.

“I’ve had an incredibly loyal following in the area since I first began playing, and I’m extremely grateful to each and every person who turns up to my gigs to see me play.”

Discover all that shines in the night sky and gaze on the moon, planets, nebulae and galaxies, when you visit the observatory on one of their public viewing nights.

Located at Western Sydney University Campbelltown Campus, these family friendly evenings are run by the Macarthur Astronomical Society in conjunction with Astrophysicist and Observatory Director, Dr Ragbir Bhathal.

The observatory is used for research and is the home of the Australian Optical SETI (OZ OSETI) Project. It is the only dedicated optical SETI project in the Southern Hemisphere. It is searching for nanosecond laser pulses from outer space with very sensitive and sophisticated equipment.

“Established in 2000, Campbelltown Rotary Observatory is an excellent example of an innovative science partnership between Western Sydney University, the community and industry/business,” said Dr Bhathal.

“It is an exciting scientific and educational resource for the community, science teachers, and schools. It complements local libraries and Arts Centre by providing a scientific and educational experience.”

More than one million Australians are drinking craft beer during an average month, almost double the number just five years ago. Craft beer, although relatively new to the Australian scene, has really taken off in the last few years. Walk into any bar these days and chances are, craft beer occupies prime beer real estate.

Craft brewing happens every day at the Otis Brewing Co, at its impressive on-site microbrewery located at Rydges Hotel, Campbelltown. Five boutique beers, as well as a range of seasonal beers and ciders, are brewed onsite at Otis and can be enjoyed straight from the bar.

Regular craft brews include the Pug’s Pale Ale, the Silver Fox Amber Ale, the Broken Antler Hefeweizen, the Mad Boar Pilsner and the cream of the crop – the Original Ghost Lager. The latter has earned plaudits from reviewers. Fairfax’s Good Food Guide gave the lager, with its distinctive branding, the following review: “Besides possessing a disturbing logo, the lager also has fantastically complex malt and citrus flavours.” Even more importantly, a big thumbs up from patrons has made the lager the brewery’s bestseller.

The craft beers are particularly popular with the young professional after work crowd, who head to OTIS Bar on a Friday night to enjoy a drink and live entertainment.

Just one staff member works at the microbrewery, beermaster Alan Barclay, who has been there since they began brewing 10 years ago. Alan is very passionate about his product.

“Brewing craft beer is a slower, more refined process,” said Alan. “You are there and you are making the product. Every batch is slightly different.”

The microbrewery no doubt contributes to the popularity of OTIS Bar, which underwent a $700,000 refurbishment in late 2015, transforming into a sophisticated sanctuary designed for the enjoyment of gourmet food, chic cocktails, earthy brews and live acoustic music.

Campbelltown is the perfect destination for the sports and recreation enthusiasts. The city boasts a wide range of facilities that enable you to stand on the sidelines and watch your team play, or participate in the action yourself.

The city is home to Campbelltown Sports Stadium, one of the state’s premier football stadiums and an international standard athletics track. In additional to being the home ground for the Wests Tigers rugby league team, during 2017 the stadium was chosen as the venue for Western Sydney Wanderer’s Football club to host the Asian Champions League competition.

In addition to the 150 games of football that are played on an annual basis, the stadium also hosts an average of 55 individual events each year, with the adjacent Athletics Centre hosting an additional 120 events annually.

Campbelltown is also home to Club Menangle, the largest harness racing track in Australasia. Together with three golf courses, a variety of sports centres, skate parks and cycleways, Campbelltown is an ideal location to celebrate the great outdoors.

Love for people, in particular the community of Campbelltown, combined with a love of healthy, innovative food, is the passion that drives Shefali Pall, Head of Product Development & Marketing at Alkalizer Café, one of Campbelltown’s newest dining establishments.

“When I am asked what made me want to get into the restaurant industry, the answer is simple... people,” explains Shefali. “I have always loved food, as well as creating and innovating with ingredients, but I also love meeting different personalities. Working in hospitality is the perfect answer for combining my passion of food, together with meeting new people.”

Alkalizer was conceptualised with an aim to provide a way to help people achieve a healthy lifestyle, and when developing the business plan, the only place Shefali could envision establishing the cafe was in Campbelltown.

“Campbelltown is my home, my heart, my love,” said Shefali. “I looked at many other locations to establish Alkalizer, but every time, my passion and my love for Campbelltown and the local community would bring me back.”

In late 2016, Alkalizer opened its flagship store in the heart of Campbelltown CBD. The café has a unique offering – alkalized water is served, and is also used to make specialty coffee and their own range of gourmet teas. All menu items are nutritionally planned, demonstrating that not only can meals be healthy, but also delicious.

The philosophy to create balance and infuse positive energy into people’s lives is important to Shefali and her team.

“That is why all the profits from the sale of our alkalized water are donated to the SPS Foundation,” said Shefali. “The institute supports deaf and blind children in Ludhiana, India and long-term, our hope is to raise enough money to fund a Braille computer.”

DELECTABLE DELIGHTS
With a menu that caters for breakfast, lunch, morning/afternoon tea, dinner and late night decadent desserts, there are many varied and wonderful choices on offer when you walk into Justinian’s Café and Dessert Bar.

There is, of course, a vast selection of healthy eating and beverage options, such as gourmet salads and organic sodas, however it is the range of mouthwatering desserts that the café is renowned for – and makes those with even the strongest willpower ditch their diets for the day.

The family business was created and is operated by Justin and Elizabeth Georgopoulos, along with 20 month daughter, Sophia, the team’s newest recruit. The husband and wife dynamic duo have more than 25 years of experience in the hospitality industry, and had long dreamed about bringing a ‘city’ concept and cosmopolitan café to the people of Campbelltown and Macarthur – as a result, Justinian’s Café and Dessert Bar was opened in July 2015.

Justinian’s is a place where customers are encouraged to build their own meals from the wide ranging menu.

“Our philosophy is to provide memorable customer experiences to everyone who walks through our doors,” explains Justin. “Our aim each day, is to create a welcoming and friendly environment, while offering outstanding food and coffee that leaves our customers eager to return for the next ‘Justinian’s experience’. Everything forms part of the customer journey – the food, the atmosphere, the friendly team environment, and we deliver on it all.”

Justin and Elizabeth are always looking for new ways to enhance the dining experience.

“We have engaged an allergy consultant,” said Justin. “They assist us to source and develop outstanding food experiences across breakfast, lunch, dinner and dessert for the growing number of customers in the Macarthur area who have food allergies. Our range includes ‘raw’ desserts that are free of gluten, dairy, eggs and refined sugar, offering our food allergy customers many exciting choices not previously available locally.”
