

HOUSE – STURT STREET

Lot 3 DP 103059 No. 14 Sturt Street, Campbelltown

Weatherboard House

HISTORY AND DESCRIPTION:

This is one of several late nineteenth century/early twentieth century houses which are found on the hillside streets of Campbelltown. The houses range in age from approximately 1860 or 1870 (early chimneys and small paned windows) to the first decades of the twentieth century. Several of these houses show details which suggest that they were constructed by a single builder.

The house at No. 14 Sturt Street is a timber/iron federation style cottage built c. 1915. Bull nose verandah with timber posts and decorative brackets. Verandah rail, gate and handrails and later additions. Simple timber picket fence adds to the property although not original.

CONDITION AND USE:

In good condition. In use as a dwelling.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE:

- The building has Aesthetic and Group significance
- It is of local significance to Campbelltown because:
  - it represents (with others in the group) the character of Campbelltown when it was an early Australian country town;
  - It is a good example of early federation style town cottages in the centre of Campbelltown; and
  - Weatherboard cottages once common in Campbelltown are becoming increasingly rare.
