

HOUSE – STURT STREET

Lot 3 DP 218620 No. 8 Sturt Street, Campbelltown
Stone House

HISTORY AND DESCRIPTION:

This is one of several late nineteenth century/early twentieth century houses which are found on the hillside streets of Campbelltown. The houses range in age from approximately 1860 or 1870 (early chimneys and small paned windows) to the first decades of the twentieth century. Several of these houses show details that suggest they were constructed by a single builder.

The house at No. 8 Sturt Street is a stone and iron roofed colonial style workers cottage. Symmetrical façade accentuated by matching chimneys. Constructed late nineteenth century. Timber lattice work in front verandah creates a unique feature although not original.

CONDITION AND USE:

Well kept garden and dwelling In use as a dwelling.

HERITAGE SIGNIFICANCE:

- The building has Aesthetic and Group significance
- It is of local significance to Campbelltown because:
  - it represents (with others in the group) the character of Campbelltown when it was an early Australian country town.
  - A good intact example of early town cottages in the colonial tradition.
