
5.2 Take Care Campbelltown

Recommendation

That the information be noted.

Over the last few weeks our region has experienced unprecedented weather that has brought with it many challenges, some that are yet to be realised and that we will be working to overcome well after this storm event has passed.

Throughout these past few days, SES and RFS volunteers have worked alongside Council staff and NSW Police to monitor road conditions and flood damage while responding to incidents as they occur.

The Emergency Services and the many volunteers that assist in emergency situations are to be commended and we are forever grateful for the hard work and countless hours they contribute to our city, even when some of their own homes might be under threat from rising waters or the ongoing rain. I would also like to acknowledge the Council staff who are going above and beyond to support the community.

Our first priority is ensuring the safety of the community until this weather event has passed and we will then get on with the job of restoring up our streets and drainage, and repairing the storm damage over the coming days and weeks.

With forecasts for heavy rains continuing, I would like to take this opportunity to urge our community to continue to remain vigilant, take care and keep an eye on updates from Emergency Services.

Our thoughts and prayers are with all those who are currently experiencing challenging circumstances across Campbelltown and our broader region. We know that as the weather eases, our community will continue to support each other.
